

Thank you for accessing the 2022 Fulton Votes Digital Toolkit.

The May 24, 2022 Primary Election will include elections for U.S. Congress, one U.S. Senate Seat, State House and Senate, Fulton County Board of Commissioners and others.

Importantly, redistricting adopted by the Georgia General Assembly will take effect for the 2022 elections, with district boundaries taking effect in 2023.

SB 202, adopted last year, brought many changes for voters. These include new process and deadlines for absentee ballots, new rules for absentee ballot drop boxes, and new rules for out-of-precinct provisional ballots on Election Day.

Fulton County will offer 30 early voting sites. We encourage voters to participate in early voting to avoid lines on Election Day.

You can help us empower voters with information by spreading the word. This toolkit includes graphics and text for you to share via social media channels, web posts and digital newsletters.

These resources are also available on the Fulton County Registration & Elections website and the FREE Fulton Votes Mobile app.

Redistricting

Redistricting was conducted by the Georgia General Assembly as a result of the 2020 Census. Redistricting occurs every 10 years after the Census to ensure that populations are consistent across districts for federal, state, county and city government elected offices. For 2022 elections, redistricting affects boundary lines for the U.S. House of Representatives, the Georgia General Assembly, Fulton County Board of Commissioners and the Fulton County Board of Education.

View www.fultoncountyga.gov/redistricting to view the Congressional Maps and to take a closer look at the redistricting process in Fulton County.

Redistricting Update

Most Fulton County voters will see at least one district change for these seats. Fulton County has completed its redistricting process by entering the new boundary lines into the state voting system.

As a result of the Fulton County Board of Commissioners redistricting process, more than 129,000 households changed to new Commission districts. Due to staggered terms and significant changes, some voters will vote this year who voted two years ago. All Fulton County voters who are now in odd-numbered districts will vote in County Commission district races this year (Districts 1, 3, 5 and 7 (at-large)). For voting purposes, redistricting will take effect starting with the May 2022 Primary. In coming weeks, all voters will receive a redistricting card that will specify assigned districts. Voters can also check the Georgia My Voter Page to see their assigned districts for all relevant offices.
